ENGINEERS IN CONVENTION CHANGE RULES

American Association of Engineers held a meeting this morning at the Police club, to discuss financial affairs, and to vote on the proposition to change some of the bylaws.

Opening session of the convention of the southwestern district of the American Association of Engineers was devoted to consideration of the engineers' registration law proposed for Texas and of a similar law for Arizona. Dean G. M. Butler, president of the convention, and Dean of the University of the state of Arizona presided.

The proposed engineers' registration bill is an "act providing for the creation and establishment of a state board of engineering examiners, granting certain powers to and prescribing the duties of said board; providing for the registration of, and the issuance of certificates of registration to professional and mining engineers, geologists, architects, surveyors and land surveyors; and providing penalties for the violation of this act."

The object of the bill is a bar from practice all save competent and honest men and to protect the public from the malpractice of men who are dishonest, incompetent and poorly trained in engineering. It is said that many of these men are basing their claims on some slight experience and mediocre technical training. These men are responsible for failures of structures and other work of an engineering nature which they have undertaken without any direct experience or knowledge. It is held. The engineers are interested in getting this legislation passed for the protection of the public and because failure of work done by dishonest or incompetent engineers reflects discredit on the profession as a whole.

Those registering for the convention were G. M. Butler, president of the American Association of Engineers of Arizona; L. B. Hitchcock, president of the Phoenix chapter of engineers; R. W. Goodrich, district treasurer of the A. A. E.; J. V. Booth, Globe and Miami, Ariz.; George Farnett, Tucson, Ariz.

JAP TROOPS AT HUNGCHUN CAUSE UNREST

Peking, China, Dec. 3.—The fact that Japanese authorities sent troops to the frontier town of Hungchun in Chinese territory, for the announced purpose of protecting Japanese subjects, has caused a serious controversy between the Chinese government and Japan. The Chinese government has pointed out that it is significant that such attacks by Chinese bandits were always made by Chinese bandits, and that the Japanese government wishes to set up a garrison.

In the course of diplomatic exchanges over the matter, it appears that the Tokyo foreign office announced that Peking had agreed to "cooperation" by Japanese troops, which the Chinese foreign ministry alleges that the invasion having already occurred when the question of cooperation was first discussed, its attitude was one of protest against a fait accompli.
